Bio

Kyung Sun's practice involves working with the firm's multiple practice groups, with a focus on litigation and dispute resolution. Kyung Sun is dedicated to representing businesses, individuals, and municipalities in a wide range of issues, and develops personalized guidance for each client to reach their goal and resolve disputes.

Before joining Inslee Best, Kyung Sun practiced with a Seattle law firm, handling a variety of commercial litigation matters.

Kyung Sun earned her J.D. from the University of Washington. During law school, she served as a Comments Editor on Washington Law Review, Vice President of Communication for the Student Bar Association, and President for the International Law Society. She was also a member of the Thurgood Marshall National Mock Trial Team as well as The Order of Barristers, a national honorary organization for oral advocacy and brief writing.

Beyond her legal work, Kyung Sun serves on the Board of Directors for the Korean American Bar Association of Washington. Kyung Sun was born and raised (until the age of 11) in Seoul, South Korea and is fluent in Korean.
